English: In English this week we have started a new book called Cinnamon. The children now know that cinnamon is a spice used in cooking but that it is also the name of our character in the story. We have kicked off this term with lots and lots of group and pair discussions. Did you know we learn the most through speaking about what we learn?

Maths: In maths we are continuing to look at decimals and how important they are in everyday life. Soon we will start adding decimals through money.

Topic: In History we have gone straight into learning about the Vikings and what their lives were like. We first had the impression that Vikings were cruel, however as we continue our research we have realised how tough it was in those days!
